Tokamak Energy's record-breaking fusion machine has broken new ground following a series of upgrades. The company's ST40 reached a plasma temperature of 100 million degrees Celsius last year, the threshold required for commercial fusion energy and the highest ever achieved in a privately funded spherical tokamak.

Early tokamak setups predominantly utilized pulse generators to maintain a consistent power supply via flywheel energy storage [[4], [5], [6], [7]]. However, contemporary fusion devices predominantly rely on superconducting coils that operate in extended pulses lasting hundreds of seconds, presenting challenges for pulsed generators to sustain prolonged ...

Conventional equalization strategies can usually be classified as being either passive or active. Passive equalization has some drawbacks, such as poor equalization efficiency, long equalization time, and high heat generation [7]. On the other hand, an active strategy uses an equalization circuit to transfer the high energy of a cell to a lower energy one [8].
