The solar panels put out about 18V, and the doorbell circuit usually put out around 20V. Its been a few days and the doorbell is running on the battery overnight and charging back to 100% every day. This should work with any "12V" solar panel that's 5W or more. You can get a 5W solar panel for about $15 on amazon.

Solar panels only trickle charge the doorbell, same as if it's connected to a transformer, which unfortunately has a very low current limit (tens of mA). You won't be able to get around this with a more "powerful" solar charger. Yes, this could have worked better if the Nest doorbell (battery) was designed with solar charging in mind.
